

GREEN DIPLOMAS TO PRAGUE LAW

National University Students Receive Degrees.

ADDRESS BY JUDGE JENKINS

Words of Advice to Hundred Successful Candidates by House Judiciary Chairman.

Successful candidates for the degrees of master of laws and bachelor of laws in the National University Law School, to the number of nearly a hundred, and representing almost every State and Territory, besides England, Germany, Mexico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Porto Rico, Venezuela, and Santo Domingo, received their diplomas at the National Theater last night.

The conferring of degrees to these students marked the completion of the thirty-seventh prosperous year for the law school, and Prof. Frederick L. Siddons, who presided, alluded with satisfaction to this record.

The invocation was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Frederick D. Power, pastor of the Vermont Avenue Christian Church. The Marine Band, under the direction of Lieutenant Santeimann, rendered a number of selections during the evening. The stage was banked with great masses of beautiful flowers.

Judge Jenkins' Address.

The address to the graduates was made by the Hon. John J. Jenkins, chairman of the Committee on Judiciary of the House of Representatives. It was brief, but pregnant with large meaning and impressive with the whole force of Mr. Jenkins' personality. The speaker congratulated the graduates upon their choice of a profession and declared they could have selected none other that would have offered so many and such large opportunities to do good, to relieve suffering and deliver the oppressed from the hands of the spoilers. He said the age demanded men trained in the law, to deliver it from the fanatic and foolish men who preach the doctrine of upheaval and discontent.

The degrees were awarded by the Hon. Eugene Carus, recently elected by the trustees of the university its tenth chancellor, vice Hon. R. H. Alvey, late chief justice of the District Court of Appeals, who resigned as chancellor after a service of nearly ten years on account of ill health.

But two more days separate the high school cadets from the greatest event in the scholastic year—the annual competitive drill. Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock the bugler of the regiment will sound the assembly and Company D of the Technical School will march on the field to begin the evolutions that will either bring gladness to the hearts of the students of manual training or fill them with despair. Following Company D will come Company F, of Eastern, last year's winning company. In the barrel of the rifle of the first sergeant of that company will hang the prize silk flag with its eighteen streamers. The flag will be turned over to the judges and unless that company proves the best drilled this year, it will not hang on the walls of the Capitol Hill school in 1907.

Hope to Smash the Record.

Never since the regiment was organized has the same company won the drill two years in succession, and the hopes of the Eastern students are hinged on the possibility that their representatives will establish a precedent this year. The Eastern Company, under Captain Miller, has been making great progress since the winter weather started, but even now it is not considered up to the standard of last year's winners. After Company F, Companies C, H, and K will be put through the paces for which they have been preparing for months. The programs this year are shorter than those of past years owing to the presence of another company at the Central school. The supplementary program of ten numbers, which it has been the custom in years gone to present the captains with on the field, to be executed without their having studied the movements prescribed, has been abolished. Only those movements which the companies have been practicing for several months will be executed.

It is expected that the drill will be the most successful that has ever been held. Preparations have been made and tickets issued to accommodate the largest crowd in the history of the event.

President to Make Presentation.

The second day's drill, when six companies, L, B, G, E, I, and A, compete, will be the greatest ever held in this city. On that day the flag will be presented to the winning company and the diamond and gold medal to the winning captain. The presentation will be made for the first time by President Roosevelt. The President will arrive at the park during the drill of the last company. He will be a spectator at the regimental drill concluding the maneuvers for the day when all eleven companies will be drawn up and put through the movements preparatory to the presentation of the flag. A short speech by the President will precede the in social circles. In the majority of instances we have supplied the necessary footwear. Folks who care for distinctive stylishness have come to us because this is the only stock which embraces a fully complete variety of these fashions, which have the approval of the elite.

There are to be seen here over a hundred shades in wedding and evening footwear—the largest variety shown south of New York.

The same completeness is noticeable in footwear for Commencements, and the extraordinary demand for footwear of this sort has kept us on the jump during the past week.

Enthusiasm in the various sports which are just now the diversion of society is increasing day by day. For golfing, riding, tennis-playing, etc., we are showing a host of styles made especially for such wear.

During the past week we have received several new consignments of Pumps and Ties, so that our varieties are complete and the choosing as perfect as ever.

LAW SCHOOL MEN IN PRIZE DEBATE

George Washington's Best Speakers on Platform.

CONTEST FOR MEDALS

District Justices to Judge Individual Merits of Oratory Champions Tomorrow Night.

The annual prize debate of the department of law and jurisprudence of the George Washington University will be held in University Hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Three public debates are held each scholastic year between the Needham and the Columbian Debating Societies of the law department. From the six men who participate in each of these debates, two are selected as honor men.

The six honor men thus selected, who are representative of the best debating ability in the university, meet in the annual prize debate at the end of the year and compete for gold, silver, and bronze medals representing first, second, and third honors.

Election of Senators.

The question, "Resolved, That United States Senators should be selected by the direct vote of the people," is to be debated strictly on its merits, the difficulty and undesirability of obtaining a constitutional amendment being eliminated. The debate will be entirely an individual contest, each speaker being allowed twelve minutes for his main

TRANSPORTATION CLUB REFUSES TO TALK SHOP

Sole Purpose of Washington Organization Under New Constitution Is to Promote Social Life, Pure and Simple, For Time Being.

The second meeting of the Washington Transportation Club was held yesterday afternoon in the offices of the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company, in the Colorado building, when a constitution and by-laws were adopted.

It was stated at the meeting that the sole purpose of the club would be to promote social life among the men representing passenger and freight transporting companies in the Capital. The constitution provides for two meetings a year, a banquet during the winter, and an outing during the summer. The constitution also provides for the calling of three business meetings during the year and as many more as may be deemed necessary by the executive committee.

Business has been sidetracked at all meetings of the society. Any member mentioning a subject which smacks of business will forfeit his membership in the organization. Fifty-seven men employed by the various transportation companies in this city have expressed their willingness to join the association, and steps are being taken to hold the regular summer outing at an early date.

The officers of the association are: W. S. Bronson, president; B. M. Newbold, vice president; W. H. Callahan, treasurer; P. H. Baldwin, secretary. An executive committee was appointed consisting of L. S. Brown, W. S. Knox, A. J. Poston, F. L. Marshall, Jr., J. C. Malcolm, and E. J. Lockwood. The committee which reported the constitution consisted of Malcolm, Sullivan, and Marshall.

argument and four minutes for rebuttal. Matthew W. Patterson, of Arkansas, who will open for the affirmative side, is president of the Needham Debating Society, vice president of the '07 law class, and will represent his class as orator in the class-day exercises of the law department.

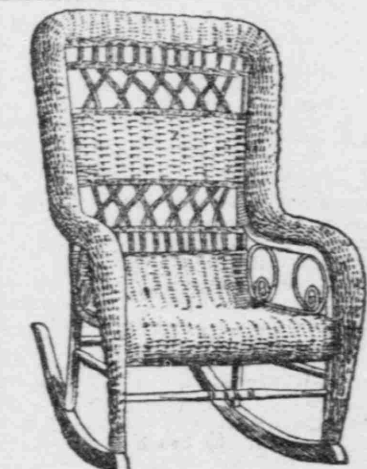

Elmer J. Lundy, also of Arkansas, will follow as first speaker on the negative side. Mr. Lundy is a member of the '07 law class, vice president of the Needham Society, and has represented his society in two inter-society debates.

Clarence A. Miller, of Missouri, the second affirmative speaker, is president of the doctor of civil laws class, '07, and has obtained a master of diplomacy degree from the university. Adam Beeler, of Indiana, the second negative speaker, is a member of the '06 graduating class, and has been business manager of the University Hatchet for the past year. John T. Kennedy, of Pennsylvania, third speaker on the affirmative side, is a member of the '07 law class, and represents the Needham Society in the intercollegiate Council. Alvin L. Neumeyer, of the District of Columbia, who will speak third on the negative, is a member of this year's graduating class. The judges will be Justices Wright, Gould, and Barnard, of the District Supreme Court. Hon. A. F. Dawson, member of Congress from Iowa, will preside.
